Bruce MacGunnigle receives "Liberty Medal" from National Society

The Liberty Medal commemorates the restoration of the Statue of Liberty, and reminds us of our liberty and is presented for recruiting new members to the SAR. The medal, along with a certificate, is awarded by the National Society at the Annual SAR Congress each year. Bruce received the award as he has sponsored 10 new members since 1986, when the award was initiated. The medal is struck in bronze and depicts a bust of the Statue of Liberty on the obverse. The reverse has a space for the name and date of the recipient to be engraved. The medal is suspended from a gold ribbon and may be worn at any SAR event.

RI Society publishes Regimental Book for the First RI Regiment

The Rhode Island Society of the Sons of the American Revolution is pleased to announce the publication of the Regimental Book First Rhode Island Regiment for 1781 &c by Bruce C. MacGunnigle with an introduction by Cherry Fletcher Bamberg, FASG.

Original records of the Revolutionary War are important to all Americans, especially historians and genealogists, but they are not always the easiest kinds of documents to use. This careful transcription of an original manuscript at Rhode Island State Archives provides rich material for the study of the First Rhode Island Regiment and the men in it. Enlistment records for over 500 soldiers (as above) allow the reader a glimpse of height, hair color, age, and occupation, as well as details of birth place and enlistment. This regiment, sometimes called the Black Regiment, is well known for its diversity, and these records are particularly revealing. In addition to the core of Rhode Islanders we find a Spanish-born fanmaker, a printer's assistant born in Africa, men from other colonies, and—more unexpectedly—soldiers from across Europe and the Caribbean. We find tiny soldiers (4 ft. 9 in.) and ones over six feet tall, teenage boys and men in their sixties. These records can be the gateway for genealogy, especially for soldiers of color. The appendix offers tables of information derived from the enlistment records.

Fascinating as they are, enlistments are only part of the original book, which includes a register of "casualties" (injury, death, desertion, promotion, and transfer), honorary badges of distinction, and furlough details. Records go far beyond the year 1781 mentioned on the title. Introductory material, including a detailed chronology, places the book in the context of the Revolutionary War, and each section is introduced with an explanatory paragraph. Images of members of the regiment that have been found are presented with details of their history. A meticulous index makes it possible for the reader to find records of each individual quickly.

The author Bruce C. MacGunnigle brings a lifetime of experience with Rhode Island Revolutionary War history to this book. In addition to his extensive body of historical and genealogical publications, he has served as president of the RISSAR, commanding officer of the Varnum Continentals, and president of Rhode Island Genealogical Society. He was recently elected Governor General of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants. Cherry Fletcher Bamberg, FASG, is the author of many books and articles and has edited Rhode Island Roots for the last ten years. The Old Guard of the Gate City Guard along with members of the Centennial Legion of Historic Military Commands at the Peace Monument in Atlanta, Georgia.

Rededication of the Peace Monument in Atlanta, GA

I recently attended the Rededication and 100th Anniversary of the Peace monument in Piedmont Park in Atlanta, Georgia. The Peace Monument commemorates the historic "Mission of Peace" to the North in 1879 by the Gate City Guard of Atlanta. The Guard had been the first military company in Atlanta to volunteer for the Civil War and it would be the first to volunteer to secure peace. On October 10, 1911, 75,000 people watched a splendid parade of military units from all over America participate in dedication ceremonies which concluded with the presentation of the monument to the City of Atlanta. Newspaper accounts of the day confirm that the Peace Monument represented different things to different people; Patriotism, reconciliation, the pledge of friendship and good will, and optimism about America's unfinished history were all prevailing. Each year The Old Guard Battalion of the Gate City Guard conducts a brief rededication observance and this year's ceremony coincided with the Annual Meeting of the Centennial Legion of Historic Military Commands. I met several representatives of the GA SAR, DAR, and CAR organizations who send greeting to all RISSAR members.

At the April 27th, 2011 annual meeting and election of the Kentish Guards JPR chapter President Warren S. Kaye was elected as the 59th Colonel Commanding of the Kentish Guards, RIM. The Kentish Guards were formed on 29 OCT 1774 to protect the town of East Greenwich, RI and the surrounding community from Tory unrest leading up to the Revolution. Once hostilities broke out with England many of members joined the Continental Army with 35 serving as officers the most from any colonial militia company. Among these officers the most famous being MG Nathaniel Greene the "Savior of the South". The Kentish Guards did garrison duty during most of the war in East Greenwich protecting it from raiding parties from occupied Newport. The Guard did garrison duty in Newport during the War of 1812, served in quelling a dangerous riot in Pawtucket during the Dorr Rebellion, raised Co H. 2nd RI Reg't of Volunteers out of their own ranks and fought in 13 major battles of the Civil War. They maintain a historic armory in East Greenwich, RI on the corner of Peirce and Armory Streets. Since then members have served in all this counties major conflicts till present day.
